Pinholes

early 1980s

Bob Trubshaw

In the early 1980s I converted a biscuit tin into an anamorphic pinhole camera to take 10 x 8 inch low contrast b&w printing paper. These negatives were used to make contact prints

I also exposed a few sheets of Cibachrome positive-to-positive printing paper.

For both papers the exposure time in sunshine was about five minutes.

The camera had no viewfinder.

This photo book was prepared January 2026.

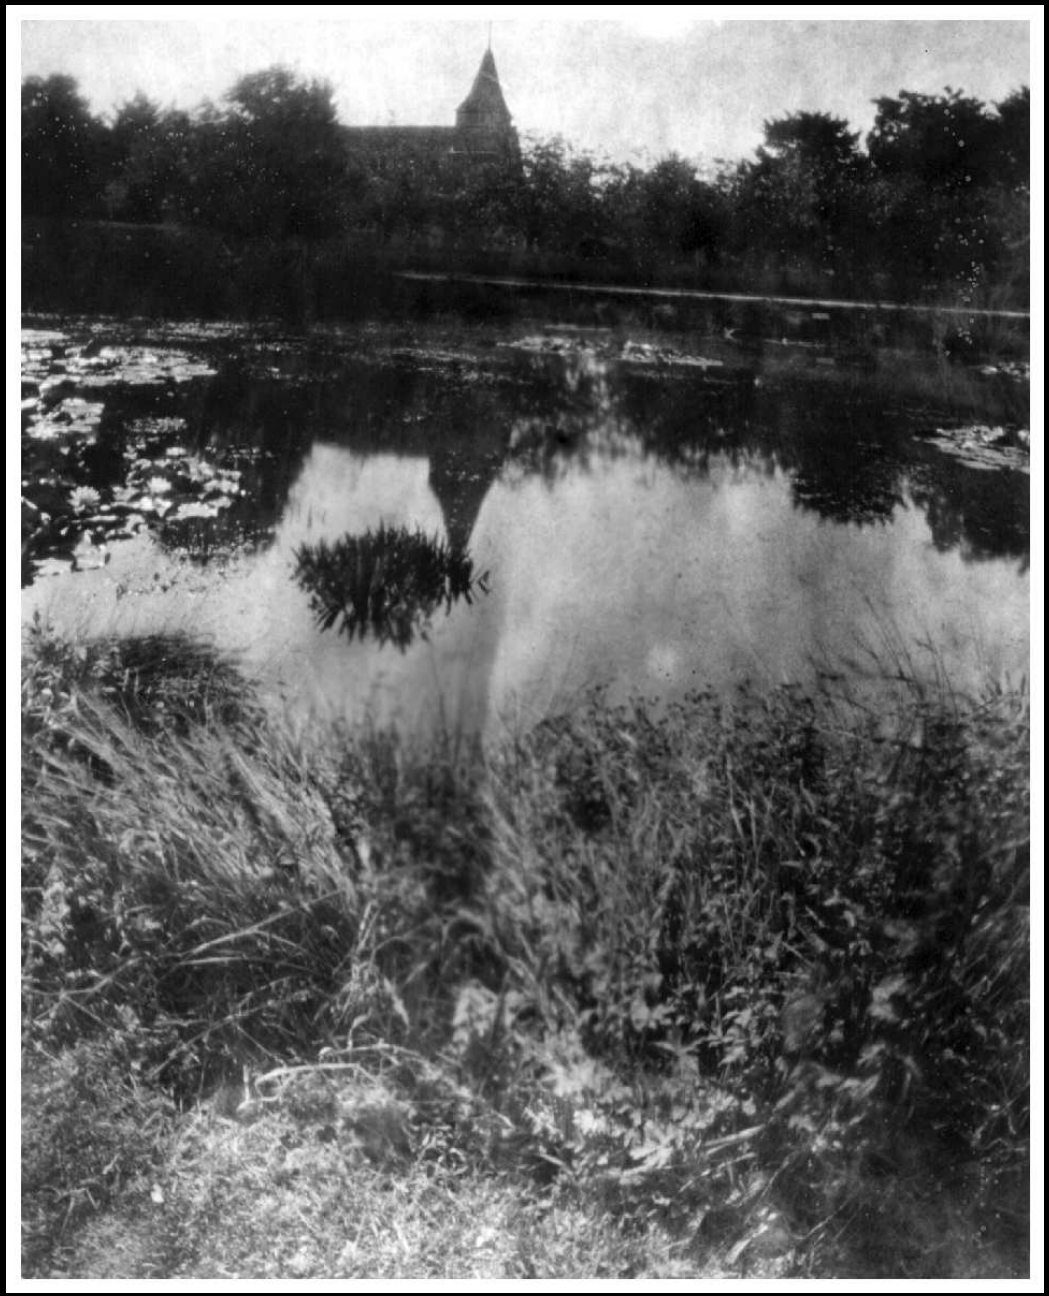
Bob Trubshaw

Reigate church, Surrey.

Reigate church, Surrey.

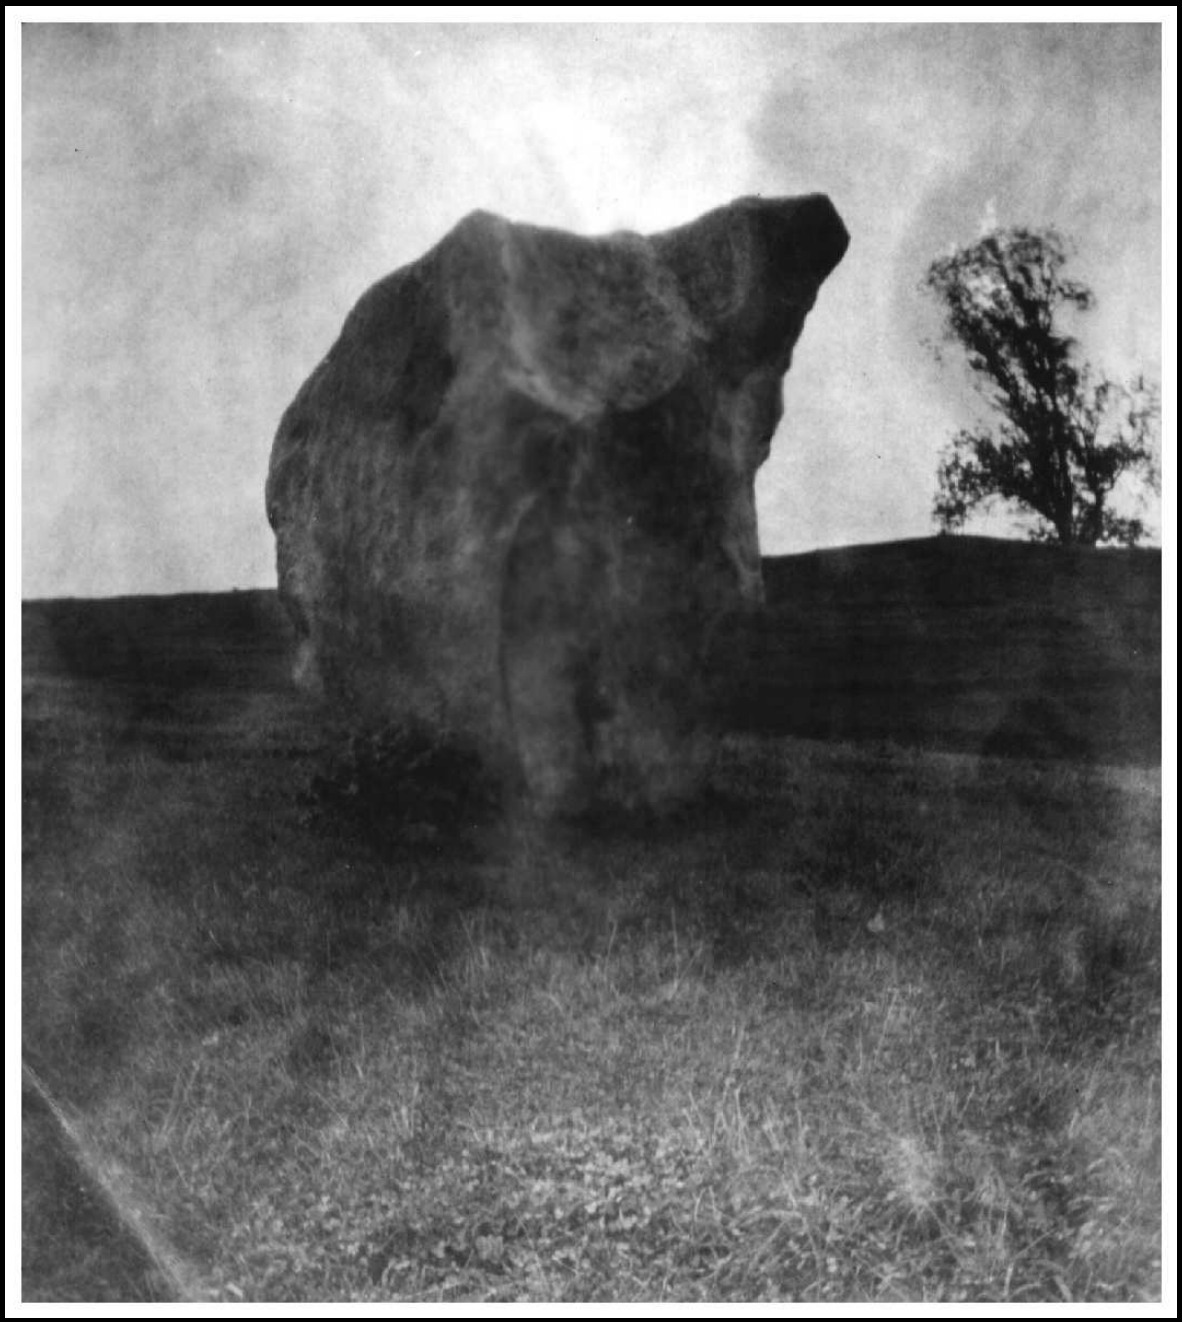
Reigate churchyard, Surrey.

Reigate Park, Surrey.



Buckland, Surrey.

Reigate Park, Surrey.



Avebury, Wiltshire.

Avebury, Wiltshire.